

'Little Camp David' Flops in Strike

Not even a judge's persistent involvement for 12 hours could produce positive steps toward a settlement in the 13-day-old teachers strike in the emotion-torn Jefferson Union High School District.

The marathon session, called by San Mateo County Superior Court Judge William Lanam in Redwood City, ended Tuesday 2 a.m. with results all too typical: The two sides couldn't even agree on what was debated.

Lanam is the judge who declared the strike illegal last week.

But it's up to district officials to move for contempt of court proceedings, and Superintendent Floyd Gonella says that's still on the back burner, despite the lack of progress in negotiations.

Gonella said negotiations would resume Wednesday before a mediator from the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB).

Both sides hailed Lanam's one-shot determination at settling the strike, which has affected six high schools in Daly City and Pacifica.

The judge noted that his action was unusual, but said he wanted to give it a try inasmuch as the case was brought to his attention through the legal channels.

Lanam called representatives of both sides Monday, and had them come to his court at the Hall of Justice in Redwood City.

Even board members were asked to stay for most of the proceedings.

Proceeding like Jimmy Carter, Lanam put the respective sides in different rooms, and played the role of the middle-man, bouncing from one huddle to another.

But Lanam was less successful than the president at Camp David.

Gonella labeled the effort "a tough session which didn't produce any movement."

Lanam, who agreed with the parties not to discuss specifics, said, "Both parties wanted to settle — but we couldn't do it."

Gonella said binding arbitration was still an issue, though the board is bending somewhat in some of the grievance steps.

But Marcie Ballard, president of Local 1481 of the American Federation of Teachers, declared that teachers agreed to remove binding arbitration as an issue "in order to get some movement from the school district on wages."

According to Ms. Ballard school officials "gave a very garbled offer which flies in the face of Proposition 13."

Gonella, though, said the district stuck with its position that only $636,664 is possibly available for retroactive salary raises to Feb. 1.

He said the school board believes that additional bond monies eyed by teachers cannot be used for salary raises, but was willing to have the issue determined legally.

He reported that the teachers refused that offer.

"At 2 a.m., I didn't feel that continued involvement on my part would be beneficial," Lanam said shortly thereafter. "It was a try."

Ms. Ballard, leaving the courthouse, told Judge Lanam, in obvious reference to his ruling of the strike as being illegal, "I hope you don't have to jail me, but if it has to be, it has to be."

Lanam's order, while calling the strike illegal, does not order teachers back to work.

The district could fire them, or bring contempt of court charges, which could result in criminal and civil remedies.

Others May Strike, Too

Bus drivers, cafeteria workers and maintenance employees in the Jefferson Union High School District received strike sanction from the San Mateo County Central Labor Council Monday night.

Ross Webber Jr., secretary-treasurer of the county organization, said he plans to use that sanction if district representatives don't return to the bargaining table.

He sent an ultimatum to that effect to Superintendent Floyd Gonella following the Monday night meeting.

According to Webber, the district's representatives recently walked out of negotiations with Local No. 377 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents the bus drivers, cafeteria and maintenance employees.

Gonella said this morning, "We did not walk out in the middle of negotiations. We made a statement... We told them we had made a contract with them in good faith, to get their men back to work, and then we'd start talking."

Gonella explained that members of AFSCME Local No. 377 have a "me, too" clause in their contract that entitles them, to receive, on a dollar to dollar basis, whatever the teachers in the district receive.

Since the district had not yet come to a wage agreement with the striking teachers, Gonella said the district could not talk with AFSCME representatives about money yet.

"They do not have the right to negotiate money alongside the teachers. When we arrive at an agreement with the teachers, then we'll talk to the other union," he remarked.

However, Gonella said district representatives would be in contact with AFSCME representatives.

The superintendent pointed out, "I'm not sure how much difference a strike sanction is going to make because there are a number of them (AFSCME members) who already are honoring the picket lines."

Although the district does not know the exact number of the approximately 125 members of AFSCME who are honoring the strike, the loss of those persons has prevented any buses from rolling since the strike began Sept. 6. The district also has been forced to hire substitute cafeteria workers and maintenance personnel to help during the strike.

Parties Urge End to Strike

Parents and students in the Jefferson Union High School District struck back at the strike Thursday night.

Each time a speaker hammered at trustees at a special meeting of the board, demanding that they settle the strike, the crowd of 300 broke into wild applause.

Some parents threatened to transfer their children to private schools. One parent who has been active in the district for 15 years, Anita Karczewski, told the board that she was withdrawing her children immediately.

"My children are presently being used in a power struggle between labor and management... Without our children, the board has no power," she remarked.

Other parents said they will keep their children home from school until the regular teachers return. Esther Talavera commented that she will keep her daughter out "until you offer her something to learn."

Mrs. Talavera added, "If you force the teachers back into the classroom without a contract, you are going to have a worse situation than you have now."

James Reed, president of the Oceana Boosters Club, said, "From what I hear from the children in my neighborhood, we're sending them to school so you talks can get the dollars but the kids aren't learning anything."

A few parents told the board, meeting at Westmoor High School, they believe the teachers are wrong, including a mother who said she thinks parents should uphold the law and send their children to school.

After the strike, she noted, "I don't think the students who are breaking the law with their parents' consent should get special consideration," noting that others have made special efforts to attend.

Pacifica Councilman Fred Howard, who doubles as president of the Terra Nova Boosters Club, said, "I think the teachers ought to go back to work."

However, he added that he will put his daughter in private school to get a good education if he has to.

Students told stories of substitutes amusing them with films and non-academic projects.

Thornton High School junior Ben Faatau said, "I've been there since school started and all I've been playing is basketball. The substitute teachers are playing with us."

An Oceana High School student, Richard Blincoe, said classrooms are half empty and substitute teachers don't have any authority.

COUNTING HEADS

Keeping track of attendance in the Jefferson Union High School District is everyone's best "guesstimate."

The Numbers Game

Like generals on a battlefield, striking teachers and district officials in the Jefferson Union High School District are fond of emphasizing the size of their ranks.

But attendance figures quoted each day by the two sides are very different. For example, on Sept. 15, the district reported 68 percent attendance by students. That same day, the striking teachers said only 50 percent of students went to school.

According to the district's counts, 93 regular teachers and 231 substitutes were on hand Monday to teach the total anti-ipated enrollment of 6,888 students. The striking teachers reported 87 regular teachers and 150 substitutes in schools Monday.

How is this numbers game played? The district receives its figures on attendance from principals at the six campuses in Daly City and Pacifica. It's hard to judge how accurate those figures are, since some students attend only a few classes each day. If a number of counts are made during the day, the district probably takes the largest one, since it gets money from the state on a per capita basis.

The numbers reported by picket captains are questionable, too, since it is extremely difficult to count all of the students streaming onto campus before the first bell.

The striking teachers are familiar with the faces of regular teachers, but they must guess which persons are substitutes. Picture-taking has become part of their morning ritual on the picket lines. Jim Conn, picket captain at Jefferson

Planners Delay 'Saddle' Rezoning

The San Mateo County Planning Commission postponed action Wednesday to rezone to open space the "saddle area" of San Bruno Mountain pending submission of a specific plan of development by owners of the property, Visitation Associates.

The commission invited the land owners to submit plans for development of any of the four planning areas of the mountain before rezoning the areas to conform with the general plan.

Howard Ellman, attorney for Visitation Associates, said his client is preparing plans for three sections of the mountain but stressed that to design a project for the saddle which already has been designated open space would be futile.

Ellman said his client opposes open space zoning for the saddle and would not prepare a construction plan under such restrictive open space zoning.

"We can't use that property under the R-M (resource management or open space) zoning. It would cost us less to do nothing with the land than to use it under R-M," said Ellman.

County Planner Paul Koenig had recommended to the commission earlier this week that it adopt the R-M zoning immediately to conform with the general plan approved by the Board of Supervisors in 1976.

The general plan, calling for open space on the 341 acres of the saddle, derailed plans by the developers to construct a massive housing and commercial project on the acreage.

The R-M zone is considered to provide for open space. It allows agricultural uses, dog kennels and breeding facilities, some multi-family and single-family residences, churches, schools and public and commercial recreation.

But the zone only allows one single-family dwelling per five acres.

Koenig said Wednesday that he considered the R-M an "appropriate" open space zoning. But he asked that the zoning change be delayed after being reminded that "policies" adopted with the general plan required that there be no change until a development plan had been submitted.

The current zoning provides for commercial and high density residential and commercial uses.

Tom Adams, attorney for the Save San Bruno Mountain Citizens group, argued that policies adopted by the supervisors in 1976 mandated that specific plans for development be prepared before zoning could be altered to R-M.

Adams said that the policies were included in the general plan because the R-M zone has no requirements for the location of structures in the saddle area "that is so environmentally sensitive."

And Ellie Larsen, representing the San Bruno Mountain task force of the Sierra Club, told the commission: "The San Bruno Mountain decision (in 1976) was a bone crusher. There was a lot of compromise over years of discussion that included policies (of the general plan). We can't forget these policies; we must remember them and apply them."

Ellman asserted that the policies on a specific development plan applied to all areas of the mountain except the saddle.

He said, in fact, that Visitation Associates likely will submit development plans for the South San Francisco slope within two or three months and then plans for the northeast ridge near Brisbane perhaps within a year.

But he emphasized that the policy for a specific project could not be construed to include land that is designated in the general plan as open space.

Taxpayers Hit Assessments

By RICK SULLIVAN

Angry taxpayers are descending in record numbers today on hard-pressed clerks at the Hall of Justice, demanding applications to contest their post-Jarvis assessments that show an average increase of 8.4 percent.

"In terms of constant calls and people coming into the office, it's the busiest we've ever been," declared Marge Ford, a secretary with the Board of Supervisors who has been pressed into service to answer incoming assessment calls.

"The phone just hasn't stopped ringing since yesterday," she added. "We have four trunk lines into this office and they are all busy."

Assessor Jack Estes said his office, too, has been flooded by calls from disgruntled taxpayers demanding more information on their Prop. 13 assessments.

"This place was jumpin' yesterday," said Estes.

The assessor said his office received 632 telephone and counter inquiries.

Some 186,000 property owners received their new assessments Wednesday. They were calculated last August under provisions of the Jarvis-Gann constitutional amendment.

Although many taxpayers did receive a significant reduction in their assessed property values, others received increases — a baffling fact in light of the enactment of Prop. 13.

Estes announced last month that 11 cities showed average assessment increases. They were Foster City, Half Moon Bay, Atherton, Belmont, Burlingame, Colma, Millbrae, Redwood City, San Bruno, San Carlos, and South San Francisco.

The remaining cities reflected decreases.

Estes has explained that property in the cities that showed increased assessments sustained more new construction, changes of ownership and property turnover since March 1975 than in the other cities.

The Jarvis measure provides that all property assessments be rolled back to 1975 levels except in the three cases mentioned by Estes.

Assessments are brought up to the selling prices on newly constructed homes in the last three years and on those purchases made during that period.

Moreover, all property

Jeff Called 'Inflexible'

Teachers striking for more pay from the Jefferson Union High School District were upset Tuesday morning that a big concession they made Monday did not also cause the district to compromise.

Mike Tugendreich of the American Federation of Teachers Local 1481, which represents the teachers, said AFT's negotiating team offered to give up binding arbitration during talks with Superior Court Judge William Lanam for 13½ hours Monday.

"I see the district as being very, very inflexible. When we made this move on binding arbitration, it was a major concession on our part. The district made the same money offer as before. I don't know what the district is trying to do — break us, or what," Tugendreich remarked.

Binding arbitration is a form of settling disputes that forces both sides to submit to the findings of an impartial arbitrator. Teachers fought for this right last year but it was not part of their most recent contract.

The teachers' concession on binding arbitration came as news to Superintendent Floyd Gonella. Gonella said Tuesday, "The first time I knew about the teachers dropping the binding arbitration issue was this morning when I heard it on the radio. I immediately called up the board members this morning to see if I had fallen asleep during the talks last night. They hadn't heard about the teachers' offer either."

Asked if the district would be willing to put more that the $636,664 already on the bargaining table, Gonella said, "The district is looking into different ways of packaging that money. I would say that is the only money officially on the table."

assessments were increased 2 percent per year for the last three years (or a total of 6 percent), as provided by Prop. 13.

One factor that is contributing to the record number of inquiries is the method by which this county rolled back assessments. Unlike many counties, San Mateo County did not use the actual 1975 assessments to arrive at new assessments this year.

Instead, the assessor's office, on the instruction of the Board of Supervisors, updated all undervalued properties in 1975 to bring them to that year's true market value. The office then used property sales figures over the last three years to calculate base-year assessments for all properties.

According to Walter Sen-ini, an official of the state Board of Equalization, several other counties used this same "factoring reassessment procedure."

"This year county assessors are using a variety of techniques to get their Jarvis assessment rolls completed," he said. "The method used by San Mateo and others is an expedient one that we consider reasonable."

Property owners in this county will have now only two weeks to determine if their assessments conform to the requirements of Prop. 13 and, if not, whether an appeal should be filed.

The deadline for filing an application to appeal or contest the new assessment is Oct. 2.

The county Assessment Appeals Board has the authority to alter a property assessment after considering testimony from a property owner and representatives of the assessor's office. Taxes are figured on the assessed value of property.

Mrs. Ford said today that property owners can call the clerk of the Board of Supervisors and request that applications for appeals be mailed to them.

Hearings on the applications will be set after October.

Meanwhile, Estes said his office has reserved 14 telephones to accept calls on assessment information. He said he expects a heavy flow of inquiries for at least the next three or four weeks.

Estes said most callers are asking how their assessments were figured and also why 6 percent was added to the 1975-76 base year assessment.

"We are answering the requests as best we can and so far there have been no problems," assured the assessor.

Estes said his office mailed 124,676 assessment notices Tuesday night and the remaining 61,329 on Wednesday.

The assessments assigned to all property parcels this week will generate approximately $160,648,000 in revenue for local governments and schools and special districts. This compares with $315,738,000 collected last year.

According to county officials, the average property tax reduction this year will be 52.4 percent.

Assessments assigned to property this year will be the base for all reassessments in the future, according to the provisions of Prop. 13.

ity. If the regular teachers are forced back into the classroom, he said he would walk out.

Donna Sims, student representative to the state Board of Education and former student member of the JHSD board, said she saw "a lot of babysitting" taking place on campus. "The people that are getting short-changed in this situation are the students," she remarked, asking for a quick settlement of the strike.

Ms. Sims chastised Superintendent Floyd Gonella for directing questions on the legality of paying retroactive raises to the state board.

The present JHSD student board member, Tani Empleo, took a different tack, advising students to attend classes because, "There's a teacher there that's ready and willing to help you." She also noted, "I feel the teachers have a right to do what they're doing."

"The state board has no jurisdiction in this matter," she said.

A number of parents and students expressed concern about the effects of the strike on the football season. Representing the Oceana football team, Mike Lloyd said his team will miss one game tonight and won't be prepared for the game scheduled next week unless coaches return quickly.

A parent, Donald Sims, said he is worried about students who could be injured while practicing for games by themselves.

Terra Nova senior Barbara Flatow asked the board to reconsider its permanent busing schedule, which will transport fewer students when buses resume service. Ms. Flatow said her father is on disability and cannot afford bus fare from Vallejo.

Apartments Rejected

Apartment buildings won't be allowed in an older section of Daly City as a result of action taken Monday night by the City Council.

The council voted unanimously to change the zoning of the area bounded by Mission Street on the east, Junipero Serra Boulevard on the west, Jefferson High School on the south and John Daly Boulevard on the north.

Under the new zoning, only single-family and duplex residences will be allowed in the area. The city must approve use permits for any duplexes.

The zoning change was made at the request of citizens living in the area, who had expressed concern for many years about the large amount of R-3 (multiple-family residential) zoning in their neighborhood. No comments were made during a public hearing before the council took its action.

In other business, the council approved pre-annexation zoning for the unincorporated Southern Hills area, which includes 28 single-family lots and one lot that has a water pumping station.

The area is located adjacent to the county line at the north end of Daly City.

Under new legislation which allows cities to annex small unincorporated "islands," Daly City is applying through the Local Agency Formation Commission to annex the property within its boundaries.

The council voted to allow construction of a commercial storage facility at 2525 Geneva Ave., with several conditions suggested by the Planning Commission, including increased parking, the elimination of one driveway and the addition of some trees.

When completed, the building could house two businesses in separate quarters.

Numbers

High School in Daly City explained, "We are putting together a scab scrapbook. You can bet none of us will ask for any of these substitutes after we go back to work."

Another problem with AFT's teacher counts is that the union does not take into account those teachers who may be absent from school due to illness. It may be assumed safely that district officials also are interpreting their teacher attendance figures in the most desirable manner.

How much significance do all these numbers have? Mike Tugendreich of AFT said it's hard to know until a normal count of student attendance is made. If the strike were over, AFT estimates 6,875 students and 334 teachers would report to school. The district figures 6,888 students and 336 teachers would appear. Superintendent Floyd Gonella apparently doesn't take much stock in the numbers. AFT members criticized him for presenting in court a statement claiming that student attendance had fallen below 50 percent, although the district's attendance figures never show student attendance below 56 percent.

Asked to reconcile those figures, "Gonella said, 'What is the difference between 45 percent or 55 percent or 65 percent? Those are just figures. I don't see the difference.'"

Petrini's FISH & POULTRY

THE GOURMET
By Petrini's
Presents
Rock Cornish Hens
with Mushroom Sauce & Stuffing

4 Young 'n Tender Brand Rock Cornish Hens
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced

¼ cup and ½ cup butter, melted
½ cup water
Salt and pepper
1 can (10½ oz.) cream of mushroom soup

Thaw birds and remove giblets immediately. Preheat oven to 400°. Rinse and dry birds. Season insides with salt and pepper. Saute mushrooms quickly in ¼ cup butter. Stuff all but 8 large slices of mushrooms into the birds. Place birds, breast side up, in shallow roasting pan. Brush with butter. Add ½ cup water to the bottom of the roasting pan to keep the drippings from burning. Cover pan with foil. Roast for 25 to 30 minutes depending on size (16 oz. to 32 oz.). Uncover. Brush with butter. Roast uncovered for 20 to 30 minutes, until the drumsticks are soft and juices are not tinged with pink when the thickest part of the thigh is pierced with a fork. The skin will be brown. Brush with butter every 10 or 15 minutes. Combine and heat soup and drippings. Serve as a sauce. Garnish birds with mushroom slices.

NOTE: A thin wine sauce made of chicken bouillon, dry white wine and thickened with a small amount of cornstarch may be served instead of the mushroom sauce.

NOT HIS BEST DIVE

Frank McGuigan, 63, feels he hasn't yet done the best he can.

After a 30-Year Absence, McGuigan Is at It Again

Opinion/feature
The POST

J. HART CLINTON, editor and publisher
WHI E. Thomas, managing editor

THE OPINIONS expressed on this page do not necessarily reflect the view of The Post. The publisher's views are expressed only in clearly marked editorials. Similarly, the conclusions reached in any feature articles or series are not necessarily the majority view of specific groups or of the public at large.

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

This 63-year-old Daly City resident has taken up diving again after almost a 30-year absence from the sport. For the last five years he has been named the National Masters Diving Champion for his age group. Winning is not something new for McGuigan.

In 1945 he won the National Indoor Diving Championship at the New York Athletic Club on the three-meter board. That was an accomplishment he said he could not expect, and quit diving.

For the next 29 years the closest he came to diving again was coaching youngsters who wanted to learn this difficult sport. He even excelled at coaching.

Three years ago he was given the Fred A. Cady Diving Coaches Award by the American Divers and Coaches Association.

When he visited Florida to see his plaque in the Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, McGuigan said it made him "feel like it was all worthwhile."

But he said he does not dive for the awards. He dives because of the personal challenge to do each dive better than the one before.

"Every dive is different," he said. "I'm constantly trying to improve."

He dives almost every day although he said it is difficult to find an available pool since Proposition 13 passed.

Over the years, even though he was not diving, he watched his weight and kept in shape. Since he is diving again, McGuigan said he feels better than ever.

"I don't think I move around like an old man," he said. "Stretching really keeps your muscles supple."

McGuigan has no plans to stop diving as he gets older and has even set his sights on winning the National Masters Championships in the 70-years-and-older category.

"I don't know how long I can dive but I intend to enjoy every minute of it," he said.

The retired United Airlines mechanic said "it's such an odd mixture" that makes a good diver -- strength, courage and acrobatic ability.

"I've landed every way there is," he said of the years he spent learning to dive. In his first competition he said he did 10 dives and did not land head first in the water once.

"The worst thing that can happen to a diver is hitting the board," said McGuigan, adding the worst injuries he has had are a black eye, welts and bruises.

McGuigan began diving when he was 18. He taught himself as many dives as he could on his own before joining an exhibition team at the Fairmont Plunge.

He remembers being "terrified and lost" when learning somersault dives. The coach would tell him what to do and then yell a signal to him when he was time to stop turning in the air and hit the water.

When he won the National Championship he was in the Navy and stationed at Treasure Island.

"I was under no pressure to win," he said. "I didn't think I'd ever be national champion."

Perhaps the most difficult part of diving is jumping off the board correctly, he said, adding that the diver must maintain perfect balance. He does not have a favorite dive because he strives for consistency -- doing all his dives well.

In the National Masters

Championship competition he does six dives: three compulsory dives and three dives of his choice.

McGuigan continues to coach as well as compete. In October he will be teaching another diving course through the Pacific Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department.

Over the years he has taught in South San Francisco and in many Peninsula cities -- both at private and public pools.

Youngsters are not as interested in diving as they used to be, he said.

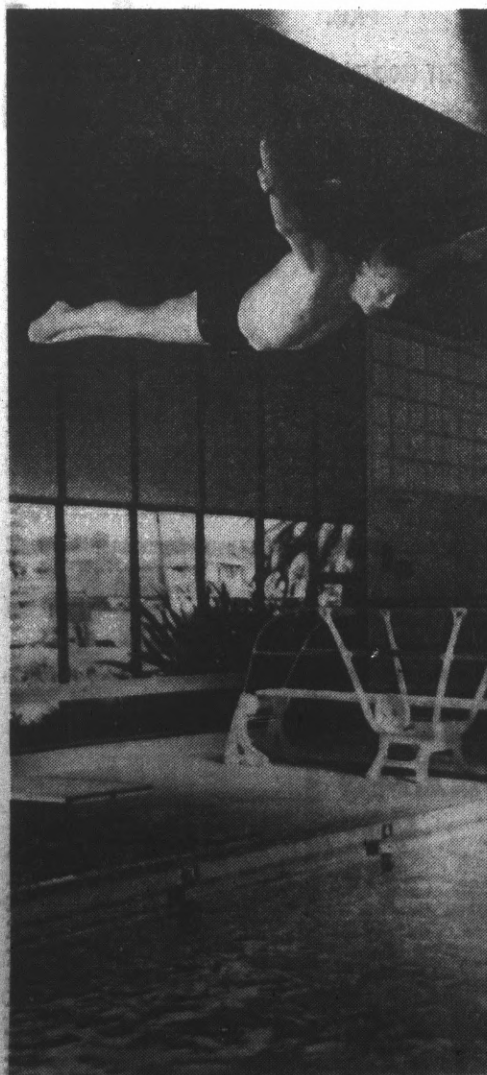

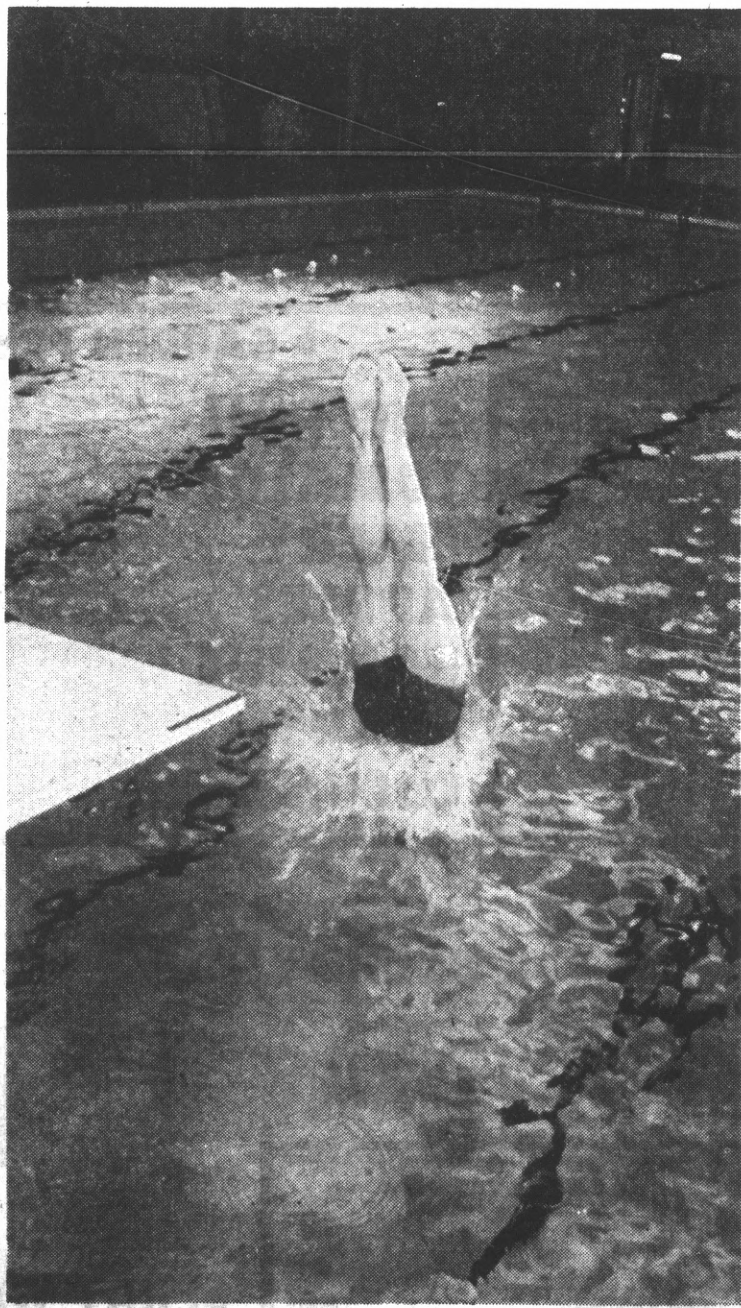

"It used to be that you'd go to the pools and find kids on the board who could do all kinds of stunts," McGuigan said, noting that those youngsters now have turned to gymnastics.

It was at the urging of some students of his that he took up diving again. His first attempts were disastrous, he said.

"I was just terrible -- stiff and old."

But then again, what is terrible to McGuigan may not be so terrible to anyone else. Soon after he had taken up diving again he won the National Masters Diving Championship in his age group.

"I've never felt I've done the best dive I can," said the obviously-modest McGuigan.

'Better Late Than Never' for Time Capsule

By ARVILLE FINACOM

There's an old adage, "Better late than never." Sometimes, in fact, lateness can have an advantage that being on time does not.

Take the burying of Millbrae's Bicentennial Time Capsule. Had it been done in 1976, nothing more than local notice might have been taken of the event. But the burial ceremony was Sept. 1, 1978, some two years late, and this lateness afforded it national notice.

TRUE, there were other factors involved. The ceremony was scheduled for a Friday afternoon. Nothing newsworthy ever happens on a Friday afternoon.

The Friday selected also was the one before the Labor Day weekend. Nothing newsworthy ever happens on a Friday afternoon at the beginning of a major holiday weekend.

Third, the burial occurred during a major newspaper strike in New York City. The wire services, news of top-of-the-morning, front page, eastern, trend-setting headlines, had to look west.

RADIO and TV stations, always on the lookout for off-beat, mildly sensational human interest fillers, picked up the wire service comments. After all, Mill-brae's capsule did include a sample of sewage treatment water, some marijuana and a pair of pantyhose.

Perspective

On and off for one full day the town of 21,000 felt the thrill of national notice as viewers and listeners across the country heard a list recited of the "items of substance and trivia" buried within the stainless steel box.

Millbrae's time capsule might have escaped its fleeting fame altogether had the committee been able to agree initially on its contents. Once the capsule's size was determined, there was only so much room and, once stuffed, there was no room for anything else even though committee members were badgered and teased by friends and family almost up to the very last moment to include other items.

THERE was disagreement, too, among committee members as to the appropriateness of certain items, leading Millbrae City Councilman Art Lepore, chairman of the Bicentennial Committee, to comment on the "capsule politics" and the "trade-offs" which occurred.

The burial ceremony was billed as the "final activity" for the Bicentennial Committee, which began as an ad hoc one in 1975. Ad hoc implies "self-destruct" when the job is done. But knowing the interest, character and persistence of Bicentennial Committee members I wouldn't be the least bit surprised to hear that they were planning even yet another project.

"Space-enough-for-everything" and "being-on-time" are two concerns another time capsule project doesn't need to worry about. Burying of the "People's Invitational Time Capsule" is scheduled for next month in Big Basin State Park, in the Santa Cruz Mountains off Skyline Boulevard, just south of the San Mateo County line. The ceremony marks the 50th anniversary of the state parks system, which began in 1928 with the dedication of Big Basin, its meandering creek and redwood forest.

THE STAINLESS steel cylindrical capsules — there may be more than one if response warrants — are five feet long and two feet in diameter. They will be stuffed with specially-prepared legal size envelopes inside of which anyone may put a letter, a poem, a fable, a short story, a comment to future generations, a photograph, a painting, a drawing, even a recorded tape, anything that will fit the envelope size.

Beyond being an ego enricher for the erstwhile author/artist as well as the serious futurist who wishes to leave his blaze as guide to coming generations, the project is a fund-raising activity of the California State Parks Foundation. The $3 tax-deductible donation required to obtain the official envelope and an accompanying certificate of participation is earmarked for state parks acquisition as part of the foundation's Parks of the Future Plan.

Two parcels of abused and neglected California land, an eroded, cut-over former timber area in the north and a sand and gravel-mined stretch of the Santa Ana River basin in the south, will be purchased with the donated dollars. Later, youth and civic groups will be invited to participate in a long-range soil rebuilding and planting program. Eventually, a legacy of restored natural beauty will bear tribute to the generosity of time capsule contributors as the lands become part of the state park system.

THERE IS an end-of-month deadline for those wishing to participate. Send a donation in any amount, — the minimum of $3 is requested if you wish a time capsule envelope — to Time Capsule Project, California State Parks Foundation, 1706 Broadway, Suite 610, Oakland 94612.

There is no deadline, though, on the work of the foundation, a private non-profit organization. With an advisory council composed of well-known California civic and business leaders and a cooperating council of groups such as the National Audubon Society, the California Native Plant Society and the California State PTA, among many others, over the eight years of its being, the foundation has raised $15 million for state parks purposes and deeded to the park system more than 13,000 acres of land purchased by or donated to the foundation.

There's much more to be said about foundation activities, and that I'll do in a future Perspective. Right now I need to puzzle out the form my capsule entry will take. Now I could do . . .

Good morning, good cooks.

We often hear of something being "A piece of cake," meaning being very easy to do. Well, this cake is indeed "a piece of cake." Though it's made from scratch, it's very easy to mix and fix and the result of your mixing and fixing is a rich, dark coffee-flavored beauty with a crunchiness of nuts and graham cracker crumbs giving it added interest.

COFFEE CRUNCH CAKE

- Crumb topping:
- 2 tablespoons 100 per cent freeze-dried coffee
  - 1 tablespoon boiling water
  - 1 cup chopped nuts
  - 1/2 cup graham cracker crumbs
  - 1/2 cup butter, melted
  - 2 tablespoons sugar

In a small bowl, combine the two tablespoons dried coffee and one tablespoon boiling water, stir until blended; add the one cup chopped nuts, half-cup graham cracker crumbs, third-cup melted butter and two tablespoons sugar; mix well. Press evenly into bottom of greased and floured 10-inch tube pan.

Cake:

- 2 cups unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3 tablespoons 100 per cent freeze-dried coffee
- 1 1/4 cups buttermilk

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In small bowl, combine the two cups flour, one teaspoon each baking powder and baking soda and fourth-teaspoon salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine the half-cup softened butter and one and one-half cups sugar, beat until creamy. Add two eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Blend in the teaspoon vanilla extract.

In large measuring cup, combine the three tablespoons freeze-dried coffee and one and one-fourth cups buttermilk, stir until coffee dissolves. Alternately stir in flour mixture with coffee-buttermilk mixture into creamed ingredients and blend well. Spoon evenly over crumb-nut mixture in prepared pan.

Baked 375 degrees for 60 to 65 minutes.

Loosen sides of pan. Cool 15 minutes. Invert cake onto wire rack. Cool completely. Drizzle top with glaze.

- Glaze:
- 3/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
  - 1 tablespoon light corn syrup

In small bowl combine the three-fourths cup confectioners' sugar, one tablespoon milk and one tablespoon corn syrup; mix well.

One measuring tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar plus enough milk to make 1 1/4 cups can be substituted for buttermilk.

From the latest issue of "Western City" comes an article that should be widely read. Entitled "Life After Jarvis," it points out that Proposition 13 is creating a new political climate and is bringing about a change in the structure of government.

"Voters believed they were getting property tax relief," writes Edward R. Gerber, "and sending a message to wasteful government spenders. But without realizing it, on June 6 they also set in motion some forces for profound change in California's structure of government and thereby created a new political climate."

IN DESCRIBING the new climate Gerber says, "In the process of distributing a massive state surplus last June, the Legislature permitted state intrusion into several areas which were previously local domain."

How are your diet marks this week . . . ?

Do you score yourself high, or do you just accept what you are doing? Is your weight loss good but your psyche dissatisfied? Do you feel down or up?

Let's add up your score. ROUND ONE: Have you been eating all of the foods the diet requires — fruits, vegetables, milk, breads and cereals, and proteins? Very good, you may award yourself another point.

ROUND TWO: Do you hold yourself to the practice of eating only in your eating place — at a table, with utensils, and three times a day? Very good, you may award yourself another point.

ROUND THREE: Are you chewing slowly and stretching out the time of your meals? You are? Excellent! One more point on the tote board.

ROUND FOUR: Do you measure your portions accurately? Allow yourself the exact amounts, not a little bit more or a little bit less. And having prepared the proper amounts, do you leave a little behind? Oh, you are a good, good dieter. Chalk up another point.

ROUND FIVE: Indulged in any creative cookery? Given some new tastes and some new foods a fling? Add another point for experimenting with this recipe for:

ASPARAGUS-CHEDDAR SOUP

- 1 small can asparagus
- 1 small can mushroom pieces
- 1/3 Cup non-fat milk powder
- flavored salt to taste
- 2 ounces cheddar cheese, cut small
- 3/4 cup water

Place all ingredients in blender. Blend until smooth, more or less. Heat in saucepan.

You've scored, but have you won? A prize, of course, unless you brought a zero — in which case, a zero reward. One point? Why not take 50 cents and go on a five-and-ten-cent store stroll. Your 50 cents buys you something silly. The fun is in deciding what.

Two points earns you a one-dollar spree. Double the points and double the fun. Three points — you get to see the movie of your choice tonight. Four points and you deserve an afternoon to yourself to relax and do nothing, if that's what you desire — and that means someone else is responsible for the kids. A five-point score — dinner out. Remember, take your diet along.

Reward yourself for good dieting. You are doing something worthwhile, and it deserves substantial recognition. Give yourself that recognition in the form of an award.

I'll reward you with a menu that can be used for either lunch or dinner in return for a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to Elise Gendar, The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116.

Samuel Chandler

For examples, he cites the requirements imposed by the Legislature in SB154 on police and fire services. Although these departments traditionally have been under almost complete home rule, now the extent to which they must be maintained is controlled by the state.

Gerber continues, "The practical effect of these restrictions is to freeze into the government structure certain programs which are favored at the state level. The question not addressed is whether other, less-favored services are to be disproportionately cut to make up for the loss in revenues."

The Gamesman

Strategic Skill Test

By RICHARD C. MOON

If you delight in contests involving strategy such as chess or backgammon, Parker Brothers' "Outwit" may be the game to provide a good deal of enjoyment for you and your family.

Outwit is a fast-moving, highly competitive game designed for two players. Though at first glance it appears to be quite easy, on closer examination it becomes clear that Outwit requires careful planning and ingenuity to achieve winning results. Because the rules are simple, children as young as eight years will find Outwit entertaining. However, it is also challenging enough to satisfy the most sophisticated adult.

OUTWIT is played on a board containing 81 squares. Each player has nine chips. The object is to become the first player to slide all nine chips into his own corner of the board while preventing the opponent from doing the same.

As you face the board, the corner farthest from you is your opponent's and you must devise a strategy for entering your chips there as efficiently and quickly as possible. To begin, your chips are placed in the center of the board in a diagonal formation that parallels that of your opponent.

A coin toss decides which player moves first. A player may move only one chip in one direction on a single turn. Eight of the chips must move either horizontally or vertically, but each player has one "power chip" that may move horizontally, vertically or diagonally. A clever player will make wise use of his own power chip in formulating game strategy.

THE CATCH, however, is that every time a chip is moved it has to keep sliding until it hits either the edge of the board or another chip; only the power chip is exempt from this rule and may stop whenever it wants, but it must stop for the same reasons as a regular chip.

Outwit is a fascinating game and it moves as quickly or slowly as the players wish. There is virtually no limit to the strategy and tactics an enterprising player can use in outwitting an opponent. Parker Brothers says of

Help Wanted

The following agencies have requested volunteer assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County, with offices in Burlingame, Daly City and Redwood City.

FRIENDLY VISITING SERVICE — Volunteers are needed to visit with lonely individuals confined to their homes and in convalescent hospitals on a one-to-one basis. The need is county wide, the time can be arranged and both men and women are needed to visit.

NORTH COUNTY MENTAL HEALTH — Concerned citizens are needed who would like to take part in promoting better mental health in North County.

FOOD ADVISORY SERVICE — A volunteer is needed in the South San Francisco area to deliver fresh groceries to home-bound individuals on Thursday or Friday for a few hours.

AMERICAN RED CROSS — The South San Francisco office needs assistance in the office to answer telephones, greet visitors, type, file and act as receptionist. Only one half-day per week is required and typing skills are not essential.

NURSING HOME OMBUDSMAN — Volunteers are needed from Daly City and the Coastside to work with a local convalescent hospital to receive inquiries and complaints about some aspect of care and explore the problem to seek a solution. Complete training is provided and will begin Oct. 6.

For further information about these and other volunteer opportunities contact the Volunteer Bureau at the main office in Burlingame, 342-0801. Interviews will be made in Daly City by appointment. A project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County, the Bureau shares in the United Way of the Bay Area and is funded, in part, by the County of San Mateo.

For college students interested in volunteer positions there is a volunteer office, Y.O.U., on the campuses of College of San Mateo and Canada College.

'BIRTHDAY PARTY' AT MARY'S HELP

The next time Charlene and Raul Bracamonte have a dinner party out, they'll have to hire a babysitter. Charlene recently gave birth to their first child, a daughter, at Mary's Help Hospital. The candlelight dinner for the new parents was in the specially appointed dining room at Mary's Help and was sponsored by the hospital. The menu included chilled champagne and a choice of broiled filet mignon or chicken breast, cordon bleu. The celebration candlelight dinner is being offered to all newly delivered mothers at MHH and their guest as guests of the hospital. Other programs for new mothers at Mary's Help included childbirth education classes, natural family planning classes and an Alternative Birth Center. The three Bracamontes reside in Pacifica and mother Charlene has been an employee of the hospital in the Dietary Department. She plans to return to work in November.

MH Offers Alternative Birth Plan

Prospective mothers who want a natural, home-like delivery without giving up the safety provided by modern medicine have an alternative at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City.

This month the hospital is opening an Alternative Birth Center (ABC), a special, non-traditional labor/delivery program in the hospital's Maternity Unit. Although the ABC provides a home-like setting, in the event of an emergency all the resources of modern medicine are only steps away.

In the ABC, the mother will be able to keep family, sometimes including children, and friends, with her during labor and delivery. The ABC suite is furnished with regular bedroom furniture, a queen-sized sofa, a dinette set, television, reclining chair and refrigerator.

Pregnant women who are interested in an ABC delivery should tell their obstetricians early in pregnancy, according to Norman Wheeler, M.D., member of Mary's Help Hospital's medical-dental staff and chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the hospital. "I can't overemphasize the fact that the ABC is for the low-risk mother and this determination must be made by her personal obstetrician," he cautioned. A low-risk mother is one whose medical history and prenatal care suggest a normal pregnancy is in progress and that a normal, uncomplicated, spontaneous delivery most likely will result. (See related story, Page 19.)

In addition, women planning an ABC delivery must enroll in childbirth education classes also offered at the hospital and they must be familiar with the ABC's policies.

In the ABC the obstetrical nurse, the mother, her family and friends encourage the natural forces of labor. The mother practices the breathing and relaxation techniques learned in the classes she has attended. The obstetrical nurse minimizes repeated examinations and monitors the labor externally through timing of contractions and listening to the fetal heart beat. Usually, medication is minimal and the mother helps determine what position is most comfortable for her during labor and delivery.

If a conventional delivery turns out to be necessary, whether a father is present is determined by the obstetrician.

After delivery, mother and child (and their family and friends) stay together in the ABC suite. Administration of silver nitrate drops in the baby's eyes is postponed a half-hour to allow mother and child to "look each other over" and to encourage the mother-child bond.

In many instances, mothers can leave the hospital only 6 hours after delivery. Later a member of the MHH hospital staff or the attending obstetrics nurse will visit mother and child in their home to assure that all is going well.

The Mary's Help Alternative Birth Center reflects a new childbirth concept supported by national health-care groups. A primary purpose of facilities like the ABC is to encourage mother and child contact immediately after birth to foster mother-child bonding.

Fathers and other family members and friends also are encouraged to be active participants in the childbirth experience. An additional bonus is lowered hospital maternity charges. At Mary's Help an ABC delivery will cost between $500 to $600, not including professional fees.

Organizations supporting the concept are the American Hospital Association, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American College of Nurse-Midwives and the American Nurses Association.

Mary's Help Hospital, an acute-care hospital in Daly City at 1900 Sullivan Avenue, is sponsored and operated by the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul.

Assessor Tells Tax Deadline

Seniors who are giving some thought to property tax postponement have until Dec. 10 to file, Assessor Jack Estes said this week.

Taxpayers who are 62 years old are eligible to postpone their property taxes if they occupy the home, hold a 20 percent equity, and if total household income is $21,500 or less, Estes said.

Actually the filing period ends Dec. 31, but it is wise to file before Dec. 10 to avoid delinquency penalties on the first installment of 1978/79 property taxes, Estes pointed out.

SIGHT CONSERVATION

Optometrist Dr. David Hoffman, a member of the Daly City Skylions, examines the results of a recent eye operation which the Lions Eye Foundation performed on this Daly City woman. Skylions Sight Conservation Committee Chairman Del Wilson says, "Through your help many more people might be able to see than if you just ignore our plea for your help. Any help from used eye glasses to a bequest of your eyes after you have gone are deeply appreciated by the Skylions and the people who are helped." On Oct. 6-7, the Skylions will stage the annual White Cane Days, and glasses can be left at Vern's Coffee Shop, 6841 Mission St., Daly City, or persons can make donations through P.O. # Baseball Has Changed, But Gripes Haven't

(SECOND OF THREE PARTS)

Last week Willie Kamm was characterized as a 78-year-old Angry Young Man. If you want to know what makes Willie angry, read on:

UMPIRES — "Why should an umpire be like a God, never make a mistake? There are bound to be times when they're wrong. Nobody's perfect."

"When I was managing the Missions, I was coaching third base and one of my players was called out, and the tag was missed by six feet. Naturally, I protested. It was bad enough the ump blew the play, but he says to me, 'Ah, what's the difference? You're not gonna win, anyway.'"

"Another time, one of my players took a third strike and gently threw that bat, more in disgust with himself, not trying to show up the umpire. He got kicked out. I go up to the ump and say, 'How come?' And he not only threw me out, he says, 'If you ever pull this stunt again, I'll forfeit the game.' A few days later, one of my players hits a ball that's obviously fair, and the same ump calls it foul. I protest — my right — and he forfeits the game!"

"Shouldn't umpires be subject to reprimand when they make mistakes and unreasonable judgments? Why shouldn't they be fined or suspended, like players?"

"Show me who throws out the most players, and I'll show you the worst umpire in baseball. If an ump is right, he'll let a player argue, because he has confidence in his call. But if he's wrong, the first thing he wants is to get rid of the trouble, so the player goes. An ump who throws a guy out quick, without any real argument, is admitting he made a mistake."

HALL OF FAME — "Why do they wait until players die to induct them? What the hell good is it? And there are too many in the Hall. To me, it would be a true Hall of Fame if they had just 30-40 of the true super stars. I'll guarantee you, if you take even a good baseball fan on a tour of the Hall, there will be certain players' exhibits they'll get to and say, 'Who in the hell is that?'"

"Electors go too much strictly on records. For example, fielding statistics. A third baseman might year in and year out have more assists and putouts than another, who may be better. But he gets fewer chances because he's playing with a team with pitchers who don't force hitters to hit the ball on the ground. There are guys who hit .280 and drive in a lot of runs; others who hit .300 but strike out everytime there are men on base. Who would you rather have on your team? But the .300 hitter is much more likely to make the Hall."

"The whole secret is to get somebody pushing you, especially a prominent, nationally known newspaper man."

OFFICIAL SCORERS — "Official scoring is the biggest joke of all. You see a ball hit through a guy's legs, and if it's hit hard, especially by a good hitter, they call it a hit. A 220 hitter hits the same ball, it's an error. If a ball bounces by a great fielder, they call it a hit. They figure, ah, it must have hit a rock. Ball takes a bad hop on a guy with a reputation as a bad fielder, they call it an error."

PRACTICES — While Kamm isn't exactly angry at the way today's practices are conducted, it does irritate him that practice isn't used the way it should be.

"The biggest kick I used to get out of baseball after I retired was getting to the park early to watch practice. I thought that that was maybe the most important thing in baseball. If nothing else, you saw the good players practicing the tough plays. You might not see them get a tough chance in a game, but you'd see them in practice making a lot of them, because they'd have drills on tough plays."

"Nowadays, guys don't work on their weaknesses. I get tired of hearing players complain about the Candlestick wind and sun. If the wind and sun bother them, they should be out there having somebody hit them flies into the wind and sun. When Maury Wills was in with the Dodgers, I'd see him out there hours before a game having somebody hit him pop flies."

"Go out and watch them in infield practice when they're going for the double play. The second baseman, knowing it's coming up, plants himself on second before the ball is hit. That's not like game conditions, where he wouldn't be able to anticipate it."

"When I was with the White Sox, we had right-handed first basemen for several years. I was used to throwing the ball on the inside of the bag. Then we got a left-handed first baseman, and I was still throwing inside the baseline, making it tougher for him to handle, because he had to backhand it, going into the runner. So I got to the park early every day with a left-handed pitcher, stationed him on first, and made hundreds of throws to him, throwing to the other side."

MANAGEMENT — Like any modern player, Kamm, for reasons he really doesn't understand, was sometimes at odds with management.

When he was with the Seals, co-owner Dr. Charles Strub ignored him. "The only thing I can figure is that I was so lousy the first couple of years. Once in a while I'd run into him, say hello, and he would ignore me. After I got that half a dozen times, I said to hell with it."

"After two years of this, one he says, 'Hey, Kamm, come here.' It was the first time he had ever talked to me. I say, 'Yes, sir?' He says, 'You don't like me, do you?' 'I wouldn't say I don't like you, because I don't know you.' 'Well, I want to tell you something, and it goes for the rest of those guys in the clubhouse. Somebody around here has to be a no good SOB, and it just might as well be me.' He walked away, and that was the last time he ever talked to me."

When Kamm was traded to Cleveland in 1932, he heard about it from an anonymous telephone operator who evidently had overheard the trade being made. He read about it officially in the newspapers. He never got word from anyone on the club.

But Kamm's strangest run-in with management occurred after he was traded to Cleveland. In '32 and '33 he had gotten along famously with manager Roger Peckenpaugh, who, recalls Kamm, "was the smartest manager I ever played for. I wouldn't say he was the best manager, because he was too easygoing, a wonderful person. But he knew more baseball than anybody I've ever met. We practiced things I had never thought of with the White Sox."

THEN CAME Walter Johnson in 1934. Everything was fine that first year, Kamm playing 121 games. But in 1935, Kamm wasn't even practicing!

"To this day, I don't know what it was. They just started ignoring me. The manager not only refused to hit a ball to me in practice, but wouldn't let anybody else, either. Word was around, when you wanted to stop infield practice, call Kamm in. Johnson would see me and say, 'That's all.'"

"One day I got a couple of balls and a bat and gave them to Mel Harder and asked him to hit me some in the outfield, run me. I got out there and Harder is just standing there. I come back in and say, 'What's the matter?' He says, 'The manager said not to hit you any balls.'"

"Funny, I had no like or dislike for the man. I knew he disliked me, of course, but I don't know why. I didn't say six words a day."

Kamm played in only six games that season, and then came back home to manage the Missions.

Pohahau Sparks Bearcats

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE

Is San Mateo High's Seta Pohahau (a) a speed back, (b) a power back, (c) a fine receiver, (d) a fine decoy on a pass play or (e) all of the above?

If you answered (e) you are not only right, you are well on the way to figuring out what happened in Friday night's nonleague season opener between San Mateo and Serramonte at Burlingame High.

Pohahau rushed for 153

yards, scored twice and on two other plays drew off a deep defender so speedy Adam Haysbert could catch touchdown passes from John Meyer as San Mateo took a 29-7 win.

San Mateo and Serramonte both boasted quick skill players, but San Mateo had the advantage over the somewhat smaller Regents in the trenches.

San Mateo also had Pohahau, a bull of a back at 5-10, 194, strong, and also exceedingly quick (Bearcat Coach Buz Williams says he has timed Pohahau at 4.5 in the 40).

Throughout most of the first half, Serramonte was stymied and San Mateo sputtered. Serramonte also suffered a serious blow for the season when two-way lineman Pio Tuimavave suffered a broken leg, and then another two-way lineman, Moni Tialavea, was helped off after sustaining a knee injury.

San Mateo put a crimp in Serramonte's passing game, intercepting three times — each time after the ball had been batted in the secondary. Ken Grosse got two of the thefts and Chris Lee the third.

Finally, late in the second quarter, San Mateo drove 55 yards to score. Pohahau hit up the middle to score from 20 yards out; Bearcat linemen blocked straight on and let Pohahau pick his hole, which he did long before the Regents could do anything about it.

Pohahau scored again on the first drive of the second half, tallying from six yards out.

Following Grosse's second interception, San Mateo scored on one play. Meyer faked into the line, rolled left and hit Haysbert in the end zone for a 13-yard score, then ran for the conversion to make it 21-0.

Following that Serramonte finally got untracked. Doug Stewart and A.J. Stewart picked up good yardage inside, and quarterback Ron Cranshaw capped the march by hitting Sid Sakurai over the middle on a 14-yard TD play.

Serramonte recovered its inside kickoff, but failed on a fourth down play after an untimely major penalty.

Late in the fourth quarter, after a short Regent punt, Meyer passed to Haysbert on a fourth down play, and Haysbert turned on the speed for a 32-yard TD to end the scoring.

Kicker Dave Maxion's extra-point kick was dead center, and the Rams had the lead for good.

Burlingame fumbled on its next two possessions, losing the ball both times in Westmoor territory.

Rams Overcome Jackson's 229 Yds.

By DAN BERTELLOTTI

Westmoor High's football team took advantage of three key Burlingame penalties late in the third quarter to score the go-ahead touchdown in a 13-12 non-league season-opening win over the host Panthers Friday.

The heroics of Burlingame back Dan Jackson, who carried for 229 yards, were overshadowed.

The Rams were forced to punt from their own 44. But on the ensuing punt, Burlingame had 12 players on the field. The referee discovered this after a thorough count.

The 15-yard penalty gave Westmoor a first down. On the next play, quarterback Tony Limutau ran the option and was dragged down after two yards by the facemask. That cost Burlingame 15 more yards.

The Burlingame coaching staff was then penalized for complaining too loudly about the 12-men-on-the-field penalty, and a half-the-distance penalty followed.

With a first and 10 on the 13, fullback Todd Silva burst for six yards. On the next play, Limutau found wideback Bob Pittman slanting toward the left sideline in the end zone.

Kicker Dave Maxion's extra-point kick was dead center, and the Rams had the lead for good.

Burlingame fumbled on its next two possessions, losing the ball both times in Westmoor territory.

Junior running back Jackson made his full-time varsity debut a sizzling one.

The 5-10, 155-pounder ran for his 229 yards on 20 carries. He gained 155 of his yards in the first half, and it was his 59-yard run on a draw set up Burlingame's first score.

Quarterback Perry Falk found big tight end Andy Craig (64) behind the Ram defense, and Craig caught a 34-yarder for the score. Maurice Lowe batted down the all-important extra-point pass.

Jackson scored the next Panther touchdown in the second period on a 58-yard burst. He broke off left tackle, veered outside and went in untouched. Burlingame had just 10 players on the field, but it didn't seem to matter. The extra-point try was blocked.

Quarterback Limutau led Westmoor's attack with 10 of 18 passing for 123 yards, and ran for 72 more. Burlingame out-gained Westmoor 359-263, but the Rams had seven more first downs, 21-14.

It was the first game for both teams, and mistakes abounded. There were 11 fumbles, with seven changes of possession to go along with 18 penalties.

Westmoor saw fumbles halt drives at the Burlingame 21 and 23, and Burlingame ended threats three times inside Westmoor territory because of fumbles.

Jeff Tops Falcons On Big Plays

Jefferson High's football team struck quickly and with force Friday as a big-play offense carried the Indians to a 25-6 victory over host Crestmoor in the nonleague opener for both teams.

Wide receiver Jose Nuila caught touchdown passes of 40 and 16 yards and running back Richard Rodgers bolted 54 yards for one score and tossed the 16-yard touchdown to Nuila to pace the Indians' explosive attack.

Jeff opened the scoring abruptly in the second quarter as the Indians recovered a Crestmoor fumble; on the ensuing play Rodgers sprinted 54 yards for a touchdown.

Although Crestmoor tied the contest on Jim Thompson's four-yard run, Jeff was quick to retaliate. Two plays after the kickoff, Nuila snared a Nolan Smith aerial and galloped 40 yards to score.

After starting the third quarter with a 64-yard kickoff return by Doug Cheatum, Rodgers hit Nuila with a 18-yard touchdown pass off an option play.

Crestmoor's fourth turnover of the contest contributed to Jeff's final score. Three plays after an interception, Cheatum raced 36 yards for a score to make it a 25-6 contest.

Crestmoor narrowly out-gained the North Peninsula League club, 203 to 200 yards, and ran more plays, 61 to 37. Steve Devincenzi's passing was a bright spot for the Falcons; he completed 9 of 12 for 102 yards.

Bohemians' Northwood Course Revisited

Guerneville, Rio Nido, Monte Rio and Forestville are names that light up the summer sky in the 1920s, 30s and 40s. Families came by the thousands by train and auto from all parts of California to bask and bathe in warm summer breezes along the rocky beaches of the Russian River while dancing at night to the familiar sounds of Glen Miller, Benny Goodman and Harry James.

Today, after years of decline, neglect and stagnation, the Russian River resort country is staging a comeback with the help of one of the wettest winters on record. Grownups, who once were children spending their vacations there, once again are exploring the majestic and rustic redwoods. But now, they have their own children with them on this clean and rejuvenating river land where structural changes have been insignificant since those early times.

I REMEMBERED a golf course not too far from Monte Rio's Little Sandy Beach Resort, where I spent some memorable summers with my parents. I wasn't playing golf then, but I was impressed by its lovely surroundings. The "Northwood" golf course in Monte Rio is a byproduct of the Bohemian Club, which originally founded the Bohemian Grove in Russian River for artists. It later expanded its membership to include presidents, governors, movie stars and famous people throughout the world.

As many of them played golf, one of the members, Jack Neville, who built the internationally famous Pebble Beach, was hired to design a golf course across the river from the grove. Members like Bing Crosby, Phil Harris, Lowell Thomas and Dwight D. Eisenhower have traveled back and forth through the confined and towering redwood halls of this renowned nine-hole course.

Northwood was built in 1925 by cutting fairways through a concentrated forest of redwoods. Sod and turf grass were cultivated over the redwood stumps, giving many fairways a lumpy and bumpy contour. The course, with satisfactory grass coverage, adds up to 3,068 yards with a complement of two par threes, five fours and two fives. One of the par fives is the 9th, which covers 579 yards of wall-to-wall redwoods.

IT REALLY could make the golf magazines, which showed pictures some time ago of infamous holes drawn up by a devilish-minded artist depicting tees in the ocean, playing golf inside a volcano or driving a ball over a waterfall.

But this live fairway could be included in that grouping. It is 50 yards wide on the ground and 40 yards in the air, where redwood trees form a top-side foliage barrier to thwart many of one's best shots. The elevated pitted green is fronted by a deep hidden depression to make run-up shots unattainable.

One of the best designed holes is the 328-yard 4th. It is a snug dog leg right with large redwoods blocking any drive on its right corner. And if a tee shot travels too far left, another grouping of trees will stymie you. As I found out quickly, the magic word for golfing achievement at Northwood is "containment." You just can't let it out here or it certainly will do you in.

THE PAR four, 365-yard 7th is a good illustration of this and could be called the "Point of No Return." The landing area from the tee is ample but not generous. It then tapers into a tree-enclosed mini-green where not a breath of inaccuracy is tolerated.

This is one golf course where you must keep your eyes glued to the ball in flight. Otherwise a difficult task is in store trying to locate stray golf balls concealed under acres of redwoods that resemble each other.

Don't strain your eyes looking for sand traps, for only two undistinguished patterns are to be found. And that's two more than are necessary at Northwood's nine holes of "Living Redwood Fences."

A COMBINATION of gentle and sharp elevated bent-grad greens of medium-speed are available; some with all-day-sunshine and others in shady picturesque settings. But even with treed dark places preventing sunny nourishment, the small and unpredictable greens had a fair coat of putting grass to keep the golf balls on line. The real secret is finding the undersized and elusive targets without ending up behind a tree or two in their vicinity.

A country atmosphere prevails in the modern clubhouse and dining room overlooking the course, with an attractive motel next door. At only 90 minutes travel time from San Francisco to Northwood, it has to be placed on your future list for a day or weekend of golfing enjoyment and restful sightseeing pleasure.

FOR MARY'S HELP PROGRAM

The March of Dimes recently allotted $5,000 for scholarships and supplies for the Childbirth Education Program sponsored by Mary's Help Hospital. The scholarships allow for 52 women and/or couples to participate in the three courses which include early pregnancy, preparation for parenthood, and preparation for labor and delivery. Secretary of the Bay Area Chapter of the March of Dimes, Mrs. Susan Lynch of Hillsborough, left, is shown here with instructor Mrs. Anne Garrett, R.N., B.S., of Daly City, right.

Expectant Parents Offered New Class

Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City this summer began a childbirth education program.

Expectant parents who want to participate actively in the experience of pregnancy and childbirth have the opportunity to enroll in childbirth education classes at Mary's Help, at 1900 Sullivan Ave., Daly City.

Instructors Mrs. Anne Garrett, R.N., B.S., and Mrs. Mary Steinhauer, R.N., B.S., offer three different classes. Although they recommend registration in the entire series, couples may register for individual classes without taking the others.

The first class should be taken prior to pregnancy or in the first six months. Emotional and physical changes during pregnancy, nutrition and techniques for relaxation are among the topics discussed.

The second class is for the expectant couple and any others who expect to take part in child care. Content includes discussion of infant care, physical changes during labor and delivery, the hospital experience and postpartum concerns of new parents.

The third class focuses on breathing techniques and exercises for use during labor and delivery. Participants will explore alternative facilities and methods available to them for the birth of their child.

The classes are open to the public, not just to parents planning delivery at Mary's Help. Fees range from $15 to $30 per class. The classes are not intended to substitute for a physician's care during pregnancy.

For more information, call 992-4000, ext. 231.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Sunday and Monday Disco Music Nights

LEE JAMES spins the disco music every Sunday and Monday night at BAYHILL LOUNGE, San Bruno. From 8 to 10 p.m. on Monday night L.J., the D.J., plays nothing but songs of the late '50s and early '60s. ENRICO ROMANO has received many offers to sell the elk head which adorns the backbar of his ROMANO'S Italian and Seafood restaurant in Rockaway Beach. But the "pizza king" has nixed 'em all. Enrico bagged the elk in one shot with his trusty musket — and who knows when he will get another chance at one. TONY and MARGARET FONG, owners of KING'S Chinese restaurant in San Mateo, have three specialties they prepare in clay pots, a traditional way of preparing food that is becoming popular again. The clay pot method was used in China for over a thousand years to enhance the flavor of certain foods. CHRIS VLASSIS of LA PINATA Mexican restaurant says all items on his menu can be prepared to take out. Football fans are dropping by to pick up orders placed in advance to enjoy while watching the games on TV at home. A light fish lunch is one of the specialties at the ATLANTIC SEAFOOD GROTTO. Also a variety of salads, omelettes, and "Sandwiches by the Sea." All fish is fresh from San Francisco.

Finocchio's Four Different Shows

Comedienne LORI SHANNON, newly arrived from successes on the Archie Bunker Show, is pleasing FINOCCHIO'S audiences with his saucy mannerisms and endless gift of gab. Shannon and the other Finocchio entertainers are dedicated to making your evening of fun one to remember for years to come. First quality entertainment is Finocchio's policy six nights a week (closed Mondays) for four different shows. Biggest hit at last week's giant Western National Restaurant Convention was PHIL LEHR'S incredible Fasar cooking cart, the space-age flameless stove that cooks by magnetic induction. You can see the Fasar in action at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower. Bob Checchi isn't a new bartender at YOLANDA'S restaurant, although you might think so. During the past few months Bob has shed over 40 pounds. If you'd like to know how he did it, just ask him the next time you drop by for a cocktail or dinner. He's very obliging.

Rosebud's Features Continuous Service

ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, an elegant, $1 million dining palace on San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," features continuous food service from 11 a.m. to 12:30 a.m. at night, so you can stop by anytime you're in the mood for a fresh spinach salad, Quiche Lorraine with Dungeness Crab, or any of Rosebud's other gourmet specialties. Jumbo shrimp or crab cocktail, barbecued spare ribs, sautéed scampi, onion soup or chilled tomato juice are selections from "The Pantry and Tureen" at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S in Redwood City. LEHR'S CABARET DISCO in San Francisco offers free disco dance lessons by the award-winning disco dance team SUGAR 'N' SPICE, who recently gave private dance lessons to the Prince and Princess of Saudi Arabia. Hats off to TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT restaurant in Moss Beach, which features German and continental cuisine. Last Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tillie donated her time, restaurant and cooking talents for a benefit breakfast. The final count turned over to the Coastside Lutheran Church was $320.

Mary Ann Hay and Nick's Acres on TV

While chatting with CHUCK GUST the other evening at the GUST family's Rockaway Beach restaurant acres (NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES), he mentioned that this has been one of their most successful years. Reservations are already being booked for the holidays. Incidentally, be sure to watch "Evening Magazine," KPIX Channel 5, this Wednesday (Sept. 20), 7:30 to 8 p.m. JAN and STEVE, hosts of the show, will be interviewing Vocalist MARY ANN HAY, who has been entertaining patrons at Nick's restaurant for over 20 years. Almost any night of the week VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant resembles a department store having a sale. Customers are standing, sitting, and requesting a booth, seat at the counter, or a table in the formal dining room. The happy overflow always seems to find its way to the adjacent lounge. BEARDSLEY'S in Burlingame is now featuring BOBBY STAHL at the piano bar every Monday Wednesday and through Saturday. LAUBERGE French restaurant, located just south of Woodside Road on El Camino Real, Redwood City, offers plenty of parking for lunch (Mondays through Fridays) and dinner (Mondays through Saturdays). Closed Sundays.

Fair Merger Nixed

Plans to merge the San Mateo County Fair and the county's Convention and Visitors Bureau have been dropped, Hiro Higashi, president of the San Mateo County Fair and Exposition Center revealed today.

Higashi said that the decision was arrived at "by mutual consent" during a meeting of representatives of both organizations, and made official at a meeting of the fair board late last week.

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors has been made aware of the decision, he said.

At the fair board meeting, Higashi said, it was also decided to name Phil Lindecker as the new general manager, replacing Sal Millan, who resigned recently after managing the operation for 11 years.

Lindecker, who had been Millan's assistant, had been acting as interim manager. Higashi said the board felt he was the most capable candidate for the job.

Higashi said that because of Proposition 13, the supervisors had thought a merger might save money.

"The physical plant would not blend," he said. "The bureau has seven people on its staff, we have five, unless we made additions, housing at the fairgrounds would actually cost more money."

"That's not what we are looking for. We are looking for some kind of savings."

Higashi said that he understands that the convention bureau board also tends to agree with the fair association that the convention bureau goals are somewhat different from those of the fairgrounds program although there are similarities.

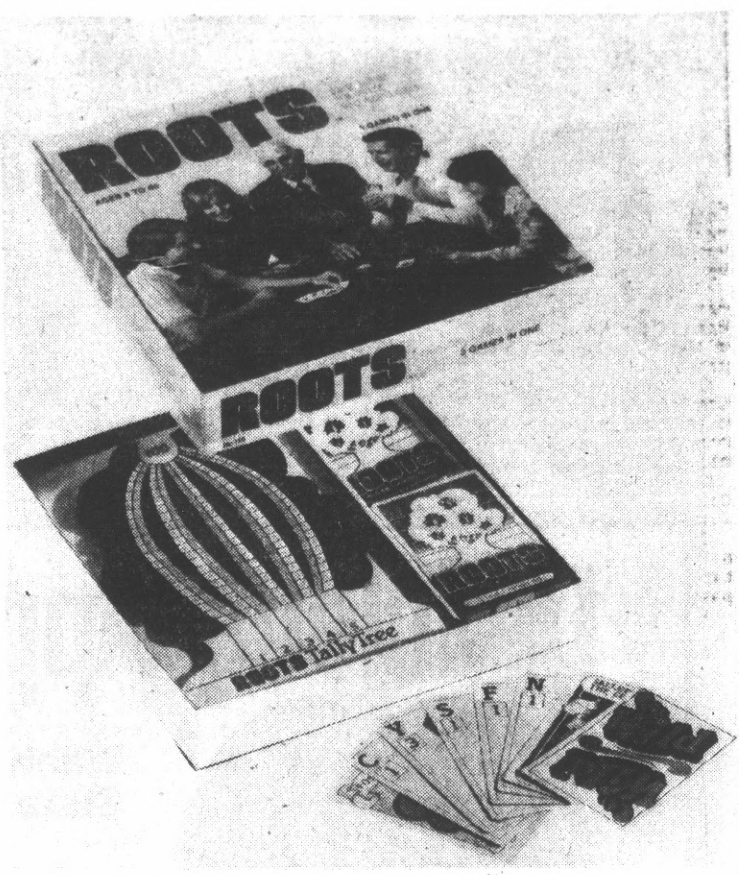

"We are working closely together now and trying to have a mutual effort to bring business into the county," Higashi said.

"Combining under one roof would not enhance this cooperation. We find the fairgrounds fully occupied during the fair, which consumes two months of working time during each year. Some big events also may tie up the full facility at other times during the year."

Higashi said the fairgrounds is still awaiting financial support decisions on the part of the supervisors, but that he understands that the convention bureau has received its allotment.

The supervisors had been supporting the fairgrounds operation annually with an allotment of paid workers to maintain the grounds and buildings. It also provided insurance coverage.

The fair is said to be one of only two in the state that is actually in the black during its operation. The allotment covers the full year when the grounds are used for community activities.

BURLINGAME MAN'S GAME GOES NATIONAL

Word-building and family heritage are combined in Roots.

New Family Word Game

The Roots of 'Roots'

By JOHN HUBBARD
Business Editor

Ads are beginning to crop up in major magazines across the country announcing "America's new family word game." It's called Roots.

But don't jump to the conclusion that the game's creator, 37-year-old Lou Petrossi of Burlingame, is trying to hitch a ride on Alex Haley's coattails.

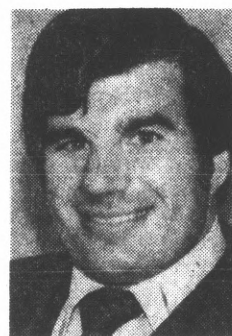

He stoutly maintains he's not.

If some of the nation's buying public wants to make a connection out of what Petrossi insists is a coincidence, however, you could hardly expect him to head them off at the cash register.

Especially since a group of financial backers has come up with $280,000 to support a production and marketing effort they hope will result in the sale of as many as a million Roots between now and Christmas — at $5 a copy.

"Actually my game was born well before Haley's book (about an American black family's heritage) appeared," said Petrossi, who operates a real estate brokerage in Daly City when he's not pushing Roots.

"I figured out the original version back in 1966, when I was teaching school in the inner-city ghetto of Hartford (Conn.). It was then, as it is now, a card game with letters on the cards as well as numbers. The idea is to build words."

Lou Petrossi

"In Hartford my hope was that it would raise the word consciousness of the students, many of whom were disadvantaged. And it really worked."

"At the time I called it Prefixes, Suffixes and Roots, with Roots used in its language context. But that's pretty unwieldy for commercial purposes, so the name got shortened to just Roots."

Then too, he said, his late mother — who came to America from Italy "and was always talking about our heritage and what it meant to us" — suggested he add that element to the game, to enliven the action and give the name a double meaning.

"I guess it would have been nice if another name would have been as appropriate, but Roots really hits the heart of the matter," Petrossi said. "Besides, the way I see it, the name doesn't make the game. If the game's no good, it won't succeed."

And based on the refinements he's made in Roots over the past 12 years, plus the reception it's received in various test marketing efforts, he's convinced it is good and will succeed.

"The game has gone through at least a hundred revisions since my original idea — no exaggeration," he said.

"I wanted to make it more exciting than Scrabble, which is our No. 1 word game. Also, knowing that gin rummy is the most popular card game, I figured out a way that Roots can also be played as a rummy game. And for people playing alone, I came up with a solitaire version. So now it's really three games in one."

Petrossi said he'd been interested in trying to market Roots for some time, "but I didn't know how and I was always too busy with other things."

Then early this year, with the help of his backers (a group of about 30 people from a variety of life's walks), he brought in some marketing and promotional expertise and, by May, the decision had been made to "go national."

To handle the business, Petrossi and his partners set up Heritage Products Ltd., based in Cupertino. They're working on mail orders as well as on placing Roots in toy stores, gift and stationery stores, and bookstores throughout the United States.

They're also planning to introduce the game in foreign-language versions in several countries abroad. "Some of the investors have taken Roots with them to other countries and found that people there have as much fun with it as they do here," Petrossi said.
